This report presents the results of our audits of expenditures¹ reported by four offices of independent counsel for the 6 months ended September 30, 2002. The Department of Justice and the independent counsels are required under 28 U.S.C. 594 (d)(2), (h) and 596 (c)(1) (2000) to report on expenditures from a permanent, indefinite appropriation established within the Department of Justice to fund independent counsel activities. We are required under 28 U.S.C. 596 (c)(2) to audit the statements of expenditures prepared by the independent counsels.

In our audits covering the 6 months ended September 30, 2002, we found

- the statements of expenditures presented in appendixes I through IV, for the offices of independent counsel David M. Barrett, Daniel S. Pearson, Donald C. Smaltz, and Julie F. Thomas, respectively, are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the basis of accounting described in note 1 of each counsel's statement, which is principally the cash basis, a comprehensive basis of accounting other than U.S. generally accepted accounting principles;
- no material weaknesses in internal control over financial reporting (including safeguarding assets) and compliance with laws and regulations; and
- no reportable noncompliance with laws and regulations we tested.

The following sections provide background information, outline each conclusion in more detail, and discuss the scope of our audits.

Background

The Ethics in Government Act of 1978 amended title 28 of the United States Code to authorize the judicial appointment of independent counsels when the Attorney General determines that reasonable grounds exist to warrant further investigation of high-ranking government officials for certain alleged crimes. The independent counsel law (28 U.S.C. 591-599 (2000)) was intended to preserve and promote the accountability and integrity of public officials and of the institutions of the federal government. The independent counsel law expired on June 30, 1999. Provisions of the law allow the independent counsels serving at the expiration date to continue investigating pending matters until they determine that the investigations of such matters have been completed.

The independent counsel law directs the Department of Justice to pay all costs relating to the establishment and operation of independent counsel offices from the permanent, indefinite appropriation established to fund independent counsel activities. The independent counsel law also designates specific responsibilities to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts (AOUSC) for independent counsels' administrative support. The Department of Justice periodically disburses lump-sum payments to AOUSC for this purpose.

During any 6-month period, there may be other significant costs incurred in support of the work of the counsels. These costs are paid from appropriations other than the permanent, indefinite appropriation established to fund independent counsel activities. These costs arise when a counsel uses detailees from other federal agencies, such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). Independent counsels are not required to reflect such costs in their statements of expenditures nor do they do so. However, for the 6 months ended September 30, 2002, there were no costs reported by other agencies in support of independent counsel activities.

Also, these statements and related notes do not include certain expenditures related to an investigation by former independent counsel Carol Elder Bruce. Ms. Bruce's office officially closed in March 2001, and accordingly, no longer prepares financial statements. However, in May 2002 (amended in July 2002), a special division of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit awarded reimbursement of $28,763 for attorneys' fees and expenses to individuals who had been investigated by Ms. Bruce but not indicted. The reimbursement was made in September 2002 from the permanent fund established for the payment of judgments.

Additionally, these statements and related notes do not include certain expenditures related to the investigation by Special Counsel John C. Danforth. The investigation by Special Counsel Danforth was officially terminated when Mr. Danforth closed his office in March 2001. Accordingly, Special Counsel Danforth no longer prepares financial statements. However, the Office of Special Counsel Danforth had $33,863 in expenditures during this period for processing delayed billings for office supplies and materials and for office rent.

Opinion on Statements of Expenditures	The statements of expenditures, including the accompanying notes for the offices of independent counsel David M. Barrett, Daniel S. Pearson, Donald C. Smaltz, and Julie F. Thomas, present fairly, in all material respects, the expenditures of these counsels for the 6 months ended September 30, 2002, on the basis of accounting described in note 1 to each office's statement. The counsels prepared their statements of expenditures principally on a cash basis of accounting, which is a comprehensive basis of accounting other than U.S. generally accepted accounting principles. The basis of accounting is described in note 1 of each counsel's statement.
Consideration of Internal Control	In planning and performing our audits, we considered internal control over financial reporting and compliance. ² We did this to determine our procedures for auditing the statements of expenditures, not to express an opinion on internal control. Accordingly, we do not express an opinion on internal control over financial reporting and compliance. However, for the controls we tested, we found no material weaknesses in internal control over financial reporting (including safeguarding assets) and compliance for the 6-month period ended September 30, 2002. A material weakness is a condition in which the design or operation of one or more of the internal control components does not reduce to a relatively low level the risk that errors, fraud, or noncompliance in amounts that would be material to the statements of expenditures may occur and not be detected promptly by employees in the normal course of performing their duties. Our internal control work would not necessarily disclose all material weaknesses.
Compliance with Laws and Regulations	Our tests for compliance with selected provisions of laws and regulations disclosed no instances of noncompliance that would be reportable under U.S. generally accepted government auditing standards. However, the objective of our audit was not to provide an opinion on overall compliance with laws and regulations. Accordingly, we do not express such an opinion.

²The objectives of internal control are to provide reasonable assurance that management objectives regarding financial reporting (including safeguarding assets) and compliance with laws and regulations are achieved.

Objectives, Scope, and Methodology	The independent counsels are responsible for preparing statements of expenditures in conformity with the basis of accounting described in the accompanying notes. The counsels are also responsible for establishing, maintaining, and assessing internal control to provide reasonable assurance that the following internal control objectives are met and for complying with applicable laws and regulations.
	• Financial reporting: Transactions are properly recorded, processed, and summarized to permit the preparation of the statements of expenditures in conformity with the basis of accounting described in the notes to the statements, and assets are safeguarded against loss from unauthorized acquisition, use, or disposition.
	• Compliance with laws and regulations: Transactions are executed in accordance with laws and regulations that could have a direct and material effect on the counsels' statements of expenditures.
	We are responsible for (1) obtaining reasonable assurance about whether the counsels' statements of expenditures are presented fairly, in all material respects, in conformity with the basis of accounting described in the notes accompanying their statements of expenditures, (2) obtaining a sufficient understanding of internal control over financial reporting and compliance to plan the audits, and (3) testing compliance with selected provisions of laws and regulations that have a direct and material effect on the statements.
	In order to fulfill these responsibilities, for each counsel, we (1) examined, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the statement of expenditures, (2) assessed the accounting principles used by management, (3) evaluated the overall presentation of the statement of expenditures, (4) obtained an understanding of internal control related to financial reporting (including safeguarding assets) and compliance with laws and regulations, and (5) tested compliance with selected provisions of 28 U.S.C. 591-599 (2000), 5 U.S.C. Chapter 55, and regulations relating to pay administration.
	We limited our internal control testing to controls over financial reporting and compliance. Because of inherent limitations in internal control, misstatements due to error, fraud, losses, or noncompliance may nevertheless occur and not be detected. We also caution that projecting our evaluation to future periods is subject to the risk that controls may become inadequate because of changes in conditions or that the degree of compliance with controls may deteriorate. In addition, we caution that our internal control testing may not be sufficient for other purposes.

We did not test compliance with all laws and regulations applicable to the offices of independent counsel. We limited our tests of compliance to those laws and regulations that we deemed applicable to the statements of expenditures. We caution that noncompliance may occur and not be detected by these tests and that such testing may not be sufficient for other purposes.

We obtained, but did not audit, information on costs that were paid from sources other than the permanent, indefinite appropriation. We obtained information on these costs from the independent counsel offices and the Department of Justice, including the FBI.

We performed our audits in accordance with U.S. generally accepted government auditing standards.

Agency Comments

We provided drafts of this report to the offices of independent counsel, the Department of Justice, and AOUSC for review and comment. These entities agreed with the facts and conclusions in our report.

Kenneth W. Starr (OIC-Starr) was appointed on August 5, 1994, to assume the investigation of possible violations of federal criminal law in Re: Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan Association and other entities (Whitewater), which was begun by regulatory Independent Counsel Robert B. Fiske, Jr. The U.S. Court of Appeals subsequently expanded OIC-Starr's jurisdiction to include selected White House Travel Office and access-to-personnel-file issues on March 22, 1996, and June 21, 1996, respectively. On October 25, 1996, it further expanded OIC-Starr's jurisdiction to include issues related to statements made on June 26, 1996, before the Government Reform and Oversight Committee, U.S. House of Representatives. On October 18, 1999, Mr. Starr resigned his appointment, and was succeeded by Robert W. Ray as independent counsel effective the same date. On March 16, 2000, Mr. Ray submitted to the Special Division of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit two final reports on (1) the access- to-personnel-files issues and (2) the issues related to statements made before the Government Reform and Oversight Committee.
