

2015 TAX FILING SEASON

Deteriorating taxpayer service underscores the need for a comprehensive strategy and continued efficiencies

AN OVERVIEW FROM GAO-16-151

In fiscal year 2015

IRS resources for taxpayer services was about $111 million less than it was in fiscal year 2014

As a result of:

- The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act
- Increased identity theft refund fraud cases

A comprehensive customer service strategy

would help the IRS overcome challenges in delivering service to individual taxpayers

IRS provided poor telephone service during fiscal year 2015

The IRS is late to resolve nearly 50% of correspondence

Common errors made by IRS assistors include providing inaccurate information when sending correspondence to taxpayers, or not sending correspondence at all

Conducting performance evaluations

would help the IRS find ways to reduce refund delays and interest paid to taxpayers

Errors by the taxpayer or the IRS can delay refunds and result in significant refund interest paid by the IRS to taxpayers

The IRS made changes to services that include:

In fiscal year 2014

- Eliminating free tax return preparation at walk-in sites

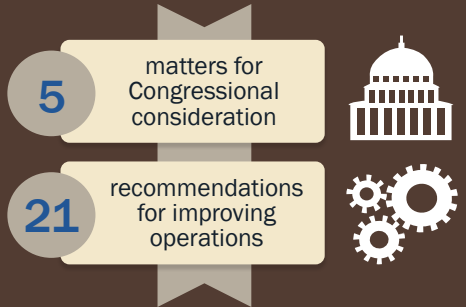

In fiscal year 2015

- Directing more taxpayers to use the IRS's online services such as its payment agreement tool, and
- Providing fewer printed products at walk-in sites

Eliminating free tax return preparation and other services in fiscal year 2014 allowed IRS to redirect about $50M to other services

GAO's prior filing season related matters for Congress and recommendations remain open
